New Group Formed In The Pass Area

A unique new group has been formed in the Pass. It consists of representatives from the Women's Church Groups in Coleman, Blairmore and Bellevue and also a representative from the Cheen Club. These women, from our various churches, have joined together because of their common concern for others and although they don't as yet have a name, are proceeding with enthusiasm.

The ladies met together for the first time in December and began planning a project for relief of the starving children in underprivileged countries. In the future, they will be concerned with matters of need, whether in a local, Canadian or world-wide situation.

Their first project is a family affair - "Needy Children's Social" - Friday, Feb. 28, 1969 at 7:30 in the I.S.H.S. auditorium. Doughnuts, coffee and punch will be served. Films will be shown and there will be entertainment by local children. Tickets can be obtained from any of the churches or at the door. Because of donations, the entire proceeds will be going to UNICEF, Oxfam and Save the Children Fund.

If you have seen the appeals on TV or read the articles in the newspapers about the plight of the starving children in the world, and have been sympathetic, this social will give you an opportunity to help in a positive way.

Hospital Board Favors Nursing Home

The Crows Nest Pass Municipal Hospital board, at its January meeting pledged full support to attempts to be made to have a nursing home instituted in the Crows Nest Pass.

A letter was received from Harold Atkinson, secretary-treasurer of the town of Blairmore, and also the Blairmore-Coleman Nursing Home district secretary, suggesting that attempts should be made to reactivate attempts to get a nursing home for this area.

Hospital administrator Ernie Luini advised the meeting that there are presently 10 persons in the local hospital that would be eligible to enter such a home and there are another 20 from this area in homes outside this district.

The board acknowledge a donation of $300 from the Crows Nest Pass Club in Calgary. The club is made up of former Pass residents who held a reunion party once a year.

The Alberta Hospitals division has approved payment of $5300 towards repair and replacement of the hospital roof.

Administrator Ernie Luini reported that the operating deficit for the 1968 year would be approximately $10,000. It had been previously estimated that this deficit would be in the near vicinity of $25,000.

Council dealt with seven proper- ties up for taxes this year.

Much discussion followed in regard to the sale of a parcel of land to one interested party, and council felt it be better if they could meet with the interested purchaser for further details.

Committee chairmen reported all going fairly well at present time. Town foreman gave a report on the school he attended in Edmonton and found this a very fruitful opportunity. Foreman was happy over the strenuous month of January and crew, although very tired, were doing a fine job. Starvation . . .Chronic Hunger

"Until quite recently starvation and chronic hunger were accepted as inevitable and not within man's control. Resignation was the normal reaction and generally no one was blamed personally. That resignation to hunger has now almost disappeared from the world. Everyone knows that it is not necessary and that the world could feed all the world's people adequately, at least at the present level of population.

"The reaction now is very simple: 'My children are crying all night with hunger, their bellies are swollen from eating mud and leaves, they will die soon — and all because the world's prosperous people don't care!' And for the first time in history this is true: this reaction is producing widespread hate and hostility against comfortable people, as it has never done before."

—Dr. Brock Chisholm, the Canadian physician who was once head of the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

This surely gives us something to think about!

How To Treat
Frostbite

Old Man Winter loves to nip your ears or nose or toes so stily you often may not know you have frostbite.

The telltale sign is when the affected part gets waxy white and numb. But sometimes it takes someone else to point it out.

The popular frostbite remedy—rubbing the affected part with snow—is wrong and can be dangerous says St. John Ambulance.

What should be done? — Treat quickly; prolonged freezing can do irreparable damage.

Warm gradually by body heat, the safest way to relieve frostbite. It is best not to apply direct heat in any form.

If your face or ear is affected, cover the frozen area with a gloved hand until normal color and feeling return.

For frozen fingers or toes, remove tight boots or gloves. A good way to thaw your hand is to place it under your clothing in your armpit. Feet may be wrapped in a warm blanket or snuggled under a companion's jacket.

If frostbite is severe, see a doctor immediately.

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
Coleman Journal,
Coleman, Alta.
Dear Sir:

Thanks for your Christmas greeting, and I must admit that we were remiss in not acknowledging it. I was in the hospital for surgery a short time before Christmas, and have not been down town since late in November, and during the deep freeze stay home, going as far as the back gate to burn the garbage, and take out our small dog to find a post to leave his trade mark.

The Journal arrives regularly and have just finished reading the Jan. 8th issue. Noticed you spent the Christmas holiday with your daughter and husband at Bow Island. We spent ours right at home, with a turkey dinner. Usually we go to the Haysoms in Lethbridge, but it was too cold and we felt we would enjoy staying home for a change.

Your local organizations appear to keep very active, and I noticed the Lions Club made a generous gift to the hospital. There is a generous change in names in the locals that very few of those we knew appear. In our own town the names of those in the telephone directory are more than 50 per cent of people we never knew and I suppose it is the same with other places with shifting population. I notice Harold Nelson's name as owner of a service station, which reminds me of a hike we made through the mountains with his father and stayed out all night in a tent, waking up in the morning to find several inches of fresh snow. I imagine Harold must remember it.

It will soon be eight years since I quit working, yet the time seems to pass quickly. I will reach the 88-year-old mark next July 1st. As the old saying goes, the first 100 years are the hardest, but who wants to live that long? However, it has been a busy life and I enjoyed newspaper work, no matter where it was.

I trust you are both keeping free of colds during this cold weather, and I am sure we will all welcome a break after such a prolonged 'deep freeze'. Kindest regards to you from both of us, and thanks again for sending me The Journal, as it is a pleasant reminder of the years we spent in Coleman.

Yours sincerely,
H. T. Halliwell.

Throwing lighted smoking material from moving automobiles is especially dangerous because the fuel along the roads often consists of dried grass or other "flash fuels", which will ignite readily from small heat sources.

THAT'S WHY it is good business policy to encourage and support local industry. THE MORE people there are employed locally, the more home-owners there are, the more benefit there will be for everyone.

PEOPLE EMPLOYED locally pay taxes—they buy from local stores—they help to create business.

BUSINESS is not a one-way street—it is built by co-operation, good will and a progressive outlook.

Curtains and Draperies—
Curtains and Draperies may be a decorative as well as a functional means of regulating light and providing privacy. Before deciding on any particular type of window treatments, one should answer the following questions:

What are your particular needs? Do you want to frame a good view or minimize a poor one? Do you want to allow plenty of light and air yet have privacy when you need it? Do you need to provide some protection from sunlight, cold or outside sounds?

Curtains, draperies, blinds and shutters used alone or in combination can solve almost any problem.

How are windows placed?—Do unusual locations, shapes and sizes complicate curtaining problem? If windows are narrow, curtains or draperies which extend over the woodwork and adjacent wall area may help to increase the apparent width of the window itself. Opaque draw draperies or cafe-type curtains may also effectively mask window sizes or placement.

How do windows operate? Double-hung windows and permanently sealed windows allow greatest freedom of choice. Casement windows, opening to the outside or inside, may present special problems in choosing curtains or draperies.

Curtains and Draperies—may be hung at the sides of windows or may be placed over the window area itself. Styles which can be drawn back and forth across the window area may be particularly flexible in use. Regardless of which type you choose, consider fabric carefully from the standpoint of purpose it is to serve, the length of wear you expect from it, and the kind and amount of care required.

Cotton, nylon, Orion, Dacron, rayon, Bemberg, glass fibre, Fortisan, linen, silk, sheet or woven plastic can all be found in curtains and draperies in a wide variety of fabric types. Before buying, find out the kind of fibre or fibres used and the care necessary for curtains or draperies made from these materials. Some may require no starching or stretching and only a minimum of ironing.

Closely woven fabrics are least likely to sag and pull out of shape over a period of time and are generally easier to sew and handle. Look for curtain or drapery fabrics that are neither too stiff nor too limp to hang gracefully. Sateen is generally used as a lining fabric in curtains and draperies to prevent fading or to improve hang or appearance.

Color, style and pattern of curtains or draperies should be in keeping with your over-all decorating plan and with your particular window needs. If you choose patterned fabric, gather it on a rod or over your arm before buying to see how the pattern will look as it hangs in folds at the window.

Fire Calls

(By A. E. Bridges, Alberta Fire Commissioner)

Here is a problem that could easily be solved. But how is it with you? Ask any person to go to the telephone as would have to be done when an emergency call to the fire department is necessary. Nine out of ten persons will be at a loss as to what number to call.

Oh, yes, you may check with the telephone book, but what is to be done in case it can't be found? Precious moments are lost and with each second of delay the fire department's chance of life rescue or fire control is diminished.

To memorize emergency telephone numbers including fire is difficult and certainly it is wise to check the number before calling to be sure the right number is used. Many people keep their emergency telephone number posted by their telephone. This is an excellent precaution, but also it is well to have the number contained in a card folder along with the usual identification cards since you may be away from your own telephone when you discover a fire.

Your fire department can serve you in time of a fire emergency only if you and every member of your family has correct knowledge of how to bring this service into action. Any confusion or delay could be costly.

Tree size is a poor indicator of age because the competition for light, space and soil moisture can produce wide variation in size for trees of similar ages.

How do you build a telephone company?

We started out with a desire to fill a particular community and business need, to provide Albertans with the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost. Our province needed a system of modern telephones to aid its prospering economy. Of course we had to obtain the physical necessities for the system: cable, switching equipment, microwave towers, and the phone that hangs on your wall or sits on your desk.

Then we had to find people to fit all these things into place. Technicians, engineers, girls who knew how to smile with their voices. Today we've an organization of 6,500 people, an investment of 420 million dollars, an integrated communications service that adds 85 million dollars of gross revenue to Alberta's economy yearly. We met every challenge — provided every type of communication service you needed. Now, we're looking to the future! — carrying out a continuing program of research and development that will continue to provide Albertans with the finest possible communications services. We know our reason for being in business. YOU!

Preventive Pointers

We in the Preventive Social Service Office would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those who helped to make the Vocational Fair possible — the School Boards, the Superintendent, the Principals and especially the staff at Isabelle Sellon high school.

We would also like to thank the Elks for their financial and manpower support. We hope that adults, as well as students, have found this Vocational Fair a worthwhile project.

If anyone has comments, pro or con, that would assist us in our thinking about the possibility of such a Fair in future years, please let us know, by writing to us, or phoning 564-4931.

Relationship Between The Sexes Program

This is an educational program, designed for Junior High and High School students, as well as parents and adults. Some of the topics that will be covered include: The Psychological Context of Sex, The Elements of Love in Successful Marriage, Choosing a Life Partner, and medical information such as Male, Female Anatomy, Menstruation, Love and Responsibility. Dr. Bruce Hatfield, a medical doctor, who has given this program most successfully in Calgary schools for the last five years will be presenting this program.

Dr. Hatfield is widely known and respected for his ability in presenting this program to teenagers.

We are most fortunate to have him here in the Pass.

The program will be presented during school hours, for Junior High and High School students at Isabelle Sellon high school, and in the evening Dr. Hatfield will conduct a program for parents and adults from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m.

We guarantee that everyone, even those who have had medical or nurses training, will learn a great deal from Dr. Hatfield. The evening program will also be held at Isabelle Sellon high school and people from all the Pass towns are invited. This program is jointly sponsored by the Preventive Social Service Board and the churches, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, in co-operation with the School Board.

Watch for further announcement on this next week.

Whether you are a student, a parent or a grandmother, join us in these programs — educate yourself and help us to — Emphasize the Positive and Eliminate the Negative.
